County fair penalized for success, says Hall

PLEASANTON - County Fair Association board members and Fairgrounds manager Lee Hall told a joint legislative panel on fairs allocations Tuesday night that they are being "penalized" financially for being a large and successful fair.

"We now need more than the $65,000 allotted us by the state," Hall commented in eliciting from the panel an admission that a prospering fair is more than likely to receive less than the $65,000. The formula for the allocations was established in 1933, according to Hall, and has not been revised.

Hall added that the Alameda County Fair Association received just $42,000 three years ago...."and each year we have to fight to keep from getting cut well below the established $65,000." The joint legislative panel on fair allocations was at the meeting Tuesday to discuss budgeting and the Alameda County Fair's position in relation to all other fairs (a total of 77 throughout the state) coming under the aegis of the State Division of Fairs and Expositions.

Making presentations and answering questions were George Gomes, of the Division of Fairs and Expositions, Don Wallace, State Dept of Finance, and Brian L. Davis, senior consultant to Assemblywoman Pauline Davis on fair allocation and classification.

The $65,000 allocation is put to operation of the fair and to premiums. Hall said that a lesser allotment makes it necessary to cutback on livestock premiums.

Prime recourse for fair associations unhappy with the allocation received is to go before the Fair Budget Review Board, composed of seven directors of various fairs and expositions.

Hall reported on six construction projects, telling directors that work on the judging arena is completed and the horse overpass should be completed by June 23. First phase work on modernising the main gates is expected to be complete by June 20. Parking lots have been resurfaced and restriped with fencing put around the lot on Pleasanton Avenue. The lot off of Rose Avenue will have two lanes of ingress, splitting into four lanes into the lot itself. Only other entry way will be through Gate 7 off of Bernal Avenue. Gates 4, 5 and 6 will be for exiting only.

In other reports to the board, directors learned that concession pricing for the 1975 fair has been established, okayed use of the directors' room for an Alameda County Mayors' Conference gathering July 2, awarded Security Eye Patrol's bid for security services during fair time and approved the annual ambulance services contract with Fremont Ambulance.

Directors also learned that preliminaries of a fiddling contest will be held Friday, July 11 at the Fairgrounds. The competition, open to all non-professional fiddlers in the county, is being held in conjunction with the appearance of Billy Armstrong, an Emmy-award winning fiddler. Finals will be Saturday, July 12 with winners receiving trophies.

Directors also paved the way for exhibit of an 11-ton antique farm tractor owned by the Oakland Museum. Called the Best Steam Tractor, it was built in the early 1900s by the forerunnej of Caterpillar Tractor. It was put together in a San Leandro factory and had been displayed at Caterpillar in San Leandro prior to being acquired by the Oakland Museum. It stands 20 feet tall at the stack, is 13 feet wide and 25 feet long. Following the exhibiting of the monstrous tractor at this year's fair, work will begin on restoration with the Museum responsible. Tom Frye of the Museum said that Cal Palmer of Livermore would be one of those assisting in the restoration, expected to take between five and seven months.

It will be displayed on a concrete slab area near the main lawn area. When restoration work begins, the tractor is expected to be housed in the livestock judging arena. Hall said that a grape stake fence would proably have to be built around the roofed 80 by 60-foot area.

Board to look at salaries again

Amador Valley Joint High School District trustees will give the certificated salary schedule for 1975-76 another go-round before adoption.

Slated to adopt a schedule at Tuesday night's regular board session, trustees elected to continue discussions in company with board counsel Keith Breon. Trustees directed architect Ron Martyn to proceed with preliminary plans for the Amador Valley High School library addition. Martyn presented an architectural rendering along with the plans Tuesday night.

The board also moved to establish a physical education elective committee, much like the one formed to explore possible setting-up of smoking areas at district campuses. Neil Sweeney, director of education services, will organize the panel and serve as liaison to the board.

Recent legislation has made physical education an elective for certain groups of students.

Don Landers, principal at Foothill High School, reviewed program planning for 1975-76 in light of the fact the school will add 400 more students in September.

Landers said plans are being made for two lunch periods and to provide a serving facility located outside the central building. For science, Landers said the junior class shows an enrollment in chemistry of four sections, plus 10 for biology, life science and earth science. The book storage room in the library will be used for a temporary chemistry lab, while two classrooms in the "B" building will continue to be used for other science classes.

Landers also disclosed that the business deepartment had grown from seven to 14 sections and requires a second typing room. Plans are being made to open the room in the home economics area of "A" building. Office machines and the other typing classes will use the same facilities as now being used.

Also outlined was the prospective parking situation. Landers said expansion of current parking space in the new contract accomodates parking for faculty and many junior drivers next year. Additional parking for school activities will have to use the field across the creek.

Trustees adopted a tentative budget of $7.7 million, the next to last step before putting together the publication budget.

An agreement was reached with the City of Pleasanton for curb, gutter and sidewalk installations on Santa Rita Road in front of Amador Valley High. The board has agreed to enter into this project and has committed bond money funds for it.

Final readings on four policies were accepted, including leave of absence for illness or injury, affirmative action, citizen and parent groups and councils or task forces and early graduation.

The 10 are alleged to have consumed alcoholic beverages and smoked unlawful substances during a class outing recently. The suspension of the 10 from graduation had drawn demands from some parents of the 10 to allow them to take part.

Board president John Delaney, in a statement after the meeting, said "We realize that this decision is one that deeply affects not only the students but also their parents. "We regret this difficult and traumatic experience for the students and especially for their parents. We have concluded however to let the decision and punishment stand. The administration has every right to set different punishment at different activities. The rules were clear and were understood by the students. Nevertheless the students chose to violate these rules and they therefore chose to take the responsibility. It was not our desire to punish parents but we believe the students made that decision entirely on their own."

Eldora Peters ends career

An association that began 31 years ago when she walked into Miss Anita Wieking's office at Sunol school and filled out application papers for a teaching position will come to a conclusion tonight.

Eldora Peters will be feted at a retirement party scheduled for the San Ramon Country Club this evening commencing at 6.

And if students walk into Room 2 at Sunol Glen School next year and keep wondering where Mrs. Peters is, they'll have ample reason. For Eldora Peters has been the teacher in charge in Room 2 for all of those 31 years.

When Mrs. Peters was hired by Anita Wieking, who now lives in Oakland, it was really a homecoming. Years before she had been taught by Miss Wieking as a first grader at Sunol school. A similar situation exists today. A former fourth grade charge of Mrs. Peters' is now on the faculty at Sunol Glen and teaching second grade. That is Madeline Ward.

Eldora Peters attended school up through the eighth grade at Sunol and then went on to Amador Valley High School. She completed her training for the teaching profession at Holy Names in Oakland and then, "because I didn't want to teach in ly home town the first year," taught initially at Niles Elementary School.

She then "came home" to Sunol where she became the third teacher on the staff. Teaching a fourth-fifth grade class initially, she then switched to a third-fourth-fifth combo with the assignment varying over the years. She has taught a third grade class in recent years.

During her tenure, she has served with many principals, including George Bury, the current principal-superintendent, Jack Mann, Dr. Pete Corona and others named Lindemann, Craig and Moller.

One of the events she most remembers is the Music Festival of 15 years ago or so that saw different schools in the county such as Green and Independent taking different parts. "To be part of the final performance and hear all those little voices was quite an experience," she reflects.

The Peters will move in a few months to their former summer home in the little mountain hamlet of Murphys.

But for hundreds of Sunol youngsters and parents, things just won't be the same without Eldora Peters in Room 2.

Long awaited presentation

Airport plans to reach COVA tonight

LIVERMORE - Half of last month's planned presentation before the Congress of Valley Agencies will be delivered at tonight's meeting when consultants for the city present preliminary plans for the airport land development.

Representatives from Livermore and Pleasanton originally agreed to present both the airport master plan and Pleasanton's proposed regional shopping center at the meeting, but Pleasanton's City Council denied the request claiming land use was out of COVA's jurisdiction.

Helen Tirsell, Livermore City Councilwoman and representative to COVA, replied that the shopping center would have at least a spinoff effect on all Valley agencies and hence come under COVA's non-powered juridiction.

The agency is "already in the land-use business," Tirsell countered, noting their presentation of the Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch site at the Arroyo Del Valle Sanitarium, the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) plans for the Valley and the U. S. Corps of Engineers Urban Studies program.

(COVA has no powers to back up its decisions and recommendations, but acts as a forum, according to its by-laws, to "present a unified opinion in order to effect policy decisions on matters of Valley-wide concern.")

The seven-member body also will hear a report on the Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch congress held last week at the sanitarium.

More than three-dozen representatives of Valley agencies ranging from 4-H to table tennis gathered at the weathered site of Arroyo Del Valle Sanitarium to view the upper portion for possible use by their agencies.

Alameda County Supervisors last month agreed to lease the 89-acre site to Sally Bystroff and her ranch for troubled youth, but a complete plan for the site must be submitted by Nov. 15.

Bystroff hoped COVA agencies would volunteer to renovate the facilities for their own use, promising security and control of any improvements made by the groups.

Members also will look at their study of the "One City" concept for the Valley exhumed at the request of Valley Community Services District Director Richard Fahey.

The meeting will convene at 8 p.m. in the Livermore Municipal Airport Administration building.

A Bicentennial booster

Pleasanton's Bicentennial Commission got a valley-wide boost this week when members of the Livermore - Pleasanton Elks presented the community group with a handsome set of constitutional papers, all on parchment and suitable for framing. "They'll look great in Century House," said Ken Mercer (right) chairman of the PBC, who accepted the gift from Kenneth Lee, past exalted ruler of the Elks. Another citation went to John Edmands, PBC member and editor-publisher of The Pleasanton Times.

East Bay Dischargers picked

LAVWMA orders EIS for piped effluent

After four hours of minute review of project and environmental matrices, the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) board stuck with the same choice that was indicated at the beginning of the Tuesday night session.

The board selected the East Bay Dischargers central bay disposal as the "best apparent facilities alternative" and will go ahead and prepare an Environmental Impact Statement on that project.

EBDA presently operates in the central bay area andd the LAVWMA alterna-tive calls for effluent (treated sewage) to be piped over the hills to EBDA and from there into the bay.

The board spent nearly four hours carefully examining Carollo Engineers report in great detail, arguing such points as whether the "no action" alternative would affect the hydrology of the valley in primary or secondary effects.

In fact, the board devoted some time to discussion of exactly what "primary" and "secondary" effects are, and finally agreed with Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) officials that primary effects include construction and operation and secondary effects are everything else.

The detailed and time-consuming procedure that the board undertook at the request of Dan Murphy was questioned by board member Ron Hyde in the early going but Don Miller and Lila Euler felt the "exercise" would be worthwhile.

And it turned out to be an exercise as Carollo Engineers had prepared two detailed "matrices" that charted the effects of the six proposed methods of disposal of effluent (plus the no action alternative) against various factors.

The environmental matrix included such items as archaeology, fauna, flora, hydrology and noise and rated each alternative one of four ways.

Miller began by saying that there should have been more than four ratings in this area and then questioned the definition of primary and secondary effects.

That discussion rambled on for some time, resulting in several minor changes and some alteration in weighting (importance) of various factors.

Once that was settled to everyone's satisfaction, the board moved on to the project matrix, which rated each project against factorssuch as monetary cost analysis, social impact analysis, bypass analysis and flood protection analysis.

.The same factor-by-factor discussion took place on those items before a steadily-decreasing audience and the decision was finally reached to support the same project that the matrices had indicated was the best all along.

However, the no action alternative took the biggest jump after the review. Originally it was the last choice, but after four hours it moved to number four out of seven.

Of course, LAVWMA's formation was designed to do something about the 13 million gallons a day of effluent that will no longer be allowed to be sent down Alameda Creek, so regardless of the position of the no action choice, something must still be done.

The idea of pumping the water into the San Leandro Creek jumped to number two in the ratings, dropping the South Bay export plan to third.

Salt routing (or storing the water in a reservoir) took over from no action as thelast choice.

The board also agreed to join with the United States Geological Survey in determining if land disposal of effluent in the valley has affected the groundwater.

And, echoing a decision made after great discussion in committee, the Environmental Impact Statement will come out in an 11" and 8" format, rather than an 8" by 11".

In committee, according to witnesses, a representative from the EPA claimed the horizontal format was better because that's the way the valley is. One consultant answered that it all depends on where you're standing— by Clay Kallam

Bombs still big rad lab product

Although energy research at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory has been getting the most publicity in recent years, by far the biggest portion of the budget is still expended on weapons and weapons technology.

And although doves and pacifists have claimed for years that the United States spends too much money on weapons development, the budget for 1976 shows the allocation for weapons over the $100 million mark for the first time since 1972.

Dr. James Carothers, the Associate Director for Nuclear Testing, was naturally pleased about the jump but points out that inflation has really cut the amount of dollars spent in weapons by a considerable amount over the last five years.

"There has been a shift in the kind of work going on in the Lab" conceded Carothers, who has been at the Livermore lab since 1950. "There have been restraints on military budgets in general" he added.

The Lab has historicallly been at the forefront of nuclear research, ever since Dr. Edward Teller promised the Navy that LLL would develop a practical nuclear warhead for submarines in the mid-1950's.

The scientists in Livermore succeeded beyond even Teller's expectations and the first Polaris submarine was launched in 1960.

Since then, LLL has worked on the Posiedon, Minuteman, Lance and multiple warhead (MIRV) payloads for American defense.

Just recently, the Lab participated in the development of the specialized Spartan missile, which releases much of its energy in the form of x-rays rather than other types of radiation.

The reason for the special emission range is to allow the explosion to transmit much of its energy into heating the covering of intercontinental missiles. Other forms of radiation — such as alpha rays or neutrons — would pass right through a missile and not really damage it. The heat generated by the x-rays would hopefully melt off the protective covering of the missile and cause it to go off course.

Such special effects are the bread-and-butter of nuclear weapons research today. The original atomic bomb detonated over Hiroshima and Nagasaki was bulky and unspecialized.

After 30 years of development, improvements are to be expected, and perhaps the most important has been minaturization. Although designing atomic bombs is difficult in itself, transporting them to the desired destination is another story.

As with all transport, the lighter the payload, the easier (and faster) it will traveL. The first step in minaturization allowed the development of the Polaris submarines and further decrease in size resulted in MIRVs.

MIRVs are basically several warheads on one missile. At a certain point on the downward flight, the warheads detach from the missile and each seek a separate target This makes it more difficult for antiballistic missiles to defend against atomic weapons and also allows more variety in attacks.

Carothers expects future developments in nuclear weapons to center around weight and specificity. The latter capability would allow a country to choose the kind of weapon required for a specific military task rather than rely on a single type of weapon.

One of the main areas of research is to develop a "clean" bomb that will minimize the effects of fallout. That kind of bomb could be used to defend the home country, say, of the defenders and would not ruin the land.

However, the testing that Carothers supervises has other applications aside from just weapons. The explosions at the Nevada Test Site are really "experiments", not "tests" according to Carothers and scientists from other fields can use the unique conditions produced by at atomic explosion.

But Carothers still has to deal with the unfashionable aspect of working with nuclear weapons. Many bright young people have refused to work on weapons research and prefer to work in peaceful, constructive branches of science. "I'm not aware of any problem of recruiting capable people" said Carothers.

Margie Thompson displays package round steak as found at the meat counter. The same round steak, when separated along membrane or fat lines, becomes top round cut (largest piece at top), bottom round cut (Margie points it out), and eye-of-round.

'How to live on less'

Be meat-wise and save!

The meat-wise shopper can feed a family economically and deliciously believes Margie Thompson of Livermore who began to learn the "ins and outs" of meat when she answered an advertisement that read "Butcheress Wanted" over 25 years ago.

How often does it happen that on a hot evening, Mom decides not to use the oven, but worries about the pork roast she planned to bake that night? If even a hint of 'spoil' can be detected when the roast is put to the nose, a consciencious cook may even discard the meat.

Margie had the same experience, but her meat know-how enabled her to save her pork roast and serve it up in style several days later.

"Meat that may begin to smell after a short time can be saved — just wash the smell off!" Margie declares. A warm water wash for beef, a baking soda wash for pork, a salt water wash for seafood, and vinegar wash for hams and smoked meats. It's that simple.

Margie, a veteran butcheress employed at Livermore's Safeway Store, teaches an adult education class in meat-cutting at Livermore High School. In a recent presentation to the Livermore Women's Club entitled "How to Live on Less" she offered money-saving tips that came as a surprise even to that group of "expert" cooks.

Discoloration in meat at the store counter is a number one cause of rejection by the shopper, Margie explained. If only that shopper knew that "aged" meat is the best meat, a secret well-understood by women several generations ago who asked the butcher to "hang" their meat before delivery.

Today's fast market turn-over in meats prevents prolonged aging of meat before it is sold. In fact, meat at the counter unsold after three days is marked down by the grocer.

"That is the best meat buy around," Margie declares."It's perfectly good." She explains that meat freshly cut from a section of beef is also very dark, then gradually blooms the bright red color in such demand by shoppers.

A firm believer that shoppers who know their meat cuts can save money, she demonstrated how to turn a round steak into a London broil, at a savings of 70 cents a pound.

"A round steak can be easily separated into three cuts of meat: the large top of round cut, the bottom round cut near the bone and the round-shaped eye-of-round," she recounted. "Each is separated by a membrane or fat. The London broil is actually a top-of-round cut thick.

"Just ask for a very thick round steak, cut out your London broil, save the bottom round piece for swiss steak. Your eye-of-round is also known as a breakfast steak, very good roasted." Margie notes that round steak sells at $1.78 per pound, top round at $2.09 per pound whenpackaged separately, and the popular London broil at $2.79 per pound.

Margie also cut the large end of a standing rib roast into what stores now label "rib lifters," while she cut the small end of the roast into several rib-eye or Spencer steaks. The roast may sell for about $2.29 per pound, while the steaks might cost $3.40 per pound.

"Freezer orders do not pay," she is confident. "Out of a 1,000 pound animal you might get only 425 pounds of edible meat. And don't forget — you pay $1.29 not only for your steaks, but for your ground meat and cheaper cuts as well."

Cheaper cuts of meat can also be effectively tenderized with a variety of marinating sauces ("Vinegar is the best of all") including apple, pineapple,orange juices and inexpensive wine.

"Don't listen to Julia Childs," she scolds. "Save that expensive wine for your table!"

Computer know how to test air quality

The all-powerful genie of modern science — the computer — may soon be helping planners determine the best way to keep air quality high in the Bay Area.

The Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District (BAAPCD) and the Ames Research Center of Mountain View have combined to produce a computer model that can predict the effect of various developments on air quality in the Bay Area.

Computer models are not models in the traditional plastic and glue fashion, but are solely mathematical. Each variable that in put into the model — population, amount of ozone in the air, etc. — is given a mathematical background that allows the computer to determine its effect on the air.

In other words, population obviously affects the quality of air, but population must be coupled with the effect of mass transit systems that may or may not be in effect. The computer model is designed so that scientists may select different values for each variabLe to determine what might happen if, say, the Las Positas proposal becomes reality.

And not only will the computer printout give researchers a guide as to what Las Positas would do to the valley, it would also tell them what effect Las Positas would have on air quality in San Jose, or San Rafael or San Francisco.

Also, such possibilities as gasoline rationing can be examined in more detail for their effectiveness in dealing with air quality problems.

The big advantage of the computer model is that once it is designed, it can be used any number of times with any number of changes in variables. So air quaLity workers can find out if increased population and the extension of BART will still keep the air clean or if there is a limit on population (with present technology) that the Bay Area can support and still maintain good air.

Another key factor is weather, according to Michael MacCracken of LLL, as temperature, wind and barometric pressure all have great effects on pollution. Thus, the program is exceedingly sophisticated.

Hopefully, though, the system will be on-line by mid-summer and will be moved to the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory.

More on the budget

County board to look at health care

Health care and the court system budgets for 1975-76 will be considered by the Alameda County Board of Supervisors today as their hearings on the budget continue in Oakland.

Although the final decisions on what to add and what to take away from the $329 million budget will not be made until one week from today, the supervisors are taking testimony on specific items at hearings today and next Tuesday.

The matters under consideration are divided into "policy" and "issue" items. Policy matters are included in the budget by County Administrator Loren Enoch while issue matters were requested by various agencies but not considered necessary by Enoch.

Most of the matters in this morning's session are at issue, and supervisors will begin hearing the requests of the Health Care Administration at 9 a.m.

First up is a $56,641 for an information and referral service that Enoch feels is a duplication of other existing services throughout the county. The service would be a telephone system that wouLd refer callers to the proper health care agency in the county.

The Health Care Administration would also like an Affirmative Action and Training Officer at $15,936, but Enoch feels federal funding might be available and also that the job could be handled by present personnel.

Highland Hospital and Fairmont Hospital are asking for $183,204 in extra personnel and one additional service but Enoch — in line with his oft-repeated message that personnel must be cut and services kept at the previous levels and no higher — has suggested that these items be left out of the budget.

However, he did approve a $66,072 request by Fairmont to bring in staff to allow the necessary paperwork to be done so that the hospital can receive its proper share of MediCal reimbursements.

At 10 a.m. the board will hear testimony on replacing over $150,000 in federal funds with county monies in various special projects throughout the county as well as a request to have the county pay off uncollectibles for ambulance service in the Oakland, Hayward, Fremont, Newark, and Emeryville areas. That last item will run to $83,510, according to Enoch's estimate, and he feels all of the above should not be in the budget for 1975-76.

Enoch, however, is supporting four matters that total over $600,000 in the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Services section of the agency. These include over $300,000 for alcoholism programs and the remainder in drug education and drug abuse programs.

Also, Enoch feels a $1,474,167 allocation to maintain the level of Alameda County Mental Health Services is justified, and testimony will be heard on that at 11 p.m.

The afternoon session, which will begin at 3 p.m., will deal with the $49 million Law and Justice portion of county services.

One of the most interesting requests concerns the Political Reform Act of 1974 (Proposition 9), which the district attorney's office feels will require three fulltime positions at a cost of $53,373 to support. Enoch states that the actual amount of enforcement needed is unknown and thus has put this item at issue.

The district attorney also would like to continue a federal program that is no longer funded which gave police some legal training. The county would have to put up the $42,000 cost and Enoch is advising against it.

Two other positions have not met with the county administrator's approval — a calendar coordinator for the Superior Court at $13,689 and an additional deputy probation officer at $16,416.

Enoch also is wary of picking up the $46,343 tab to continue federal programs that are not fully funded in 1975-76 because the bill will jump to over $200,000 in 1976-77.

However, over $465,000 is recommended for a court diversion drug treatment program since lack of funding would result in the withdrawal of $266,389 in federal monies.

A program to assist the victims of and witnesses to crimes has met with Enoch's approval, as has the continuation of the Consumer Affairs Program.

The supervisors will be viewing these policies and issues with the testimony of a half dozen citizens in their minds. Ranging from individual taxpayers to organizational representatives, they all called for fiscal restraint and lower taxes.

Dennis Colbert of Oakland asked the supervisors some very pointed questions — such as, why is the county paying $81,000 for 141 typewriters, $9,000 for 30 calculators and $608,000 for new trucks and autos?

James Garrett of the Alameda County Taxpayers' Association claimed that cutting just 1½ per cent from each department's budget could negate the necessity for the proposed 13 cent increase in the property tax rate in the county.

Dancers have a story all their own

What does Harriet Beecher Stowe have in common with the King of Siam?

They are both found in the Rogers and Hammerstein musical "The King and I" to be produced this summer through the Pleasanton Playhouse Institute of Theater Studies, of course! According to Choreographer Judy Dhant of Dublin, the main plot concerning the Siamese King who hires an English governess to teach his children is interrupted midway with a dance pantomime of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

"It's like a play-within-a-play and the only part of the musical that requires dancers," Judy explains. "Tuptim, a member of the king's harem is so impressed with 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' written by a woman, that she asks to dramatize the story before the King and his English guests."

The 17-minute interlude, set to the beautiful Rogers and Hammerstein score, relates a kalaidescope of emotions from fear and anger to serenity and hope in the tale of the escape of the slave girl Eliza from the wicked Simon Legree. Fourteen dancers are required, at least three of them male, with several prop dancers to represent, snow, rain, and mountains.

"I'll be looking for dancers who can pick up instructions quickly, and who have the ability to perform," says Judy, who prizes stage presence. Dancers who come to the play auditions Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday (see boxed information below) will be taught a dance routine by Judy, given time to practice, and then asked to perform it at a later date.

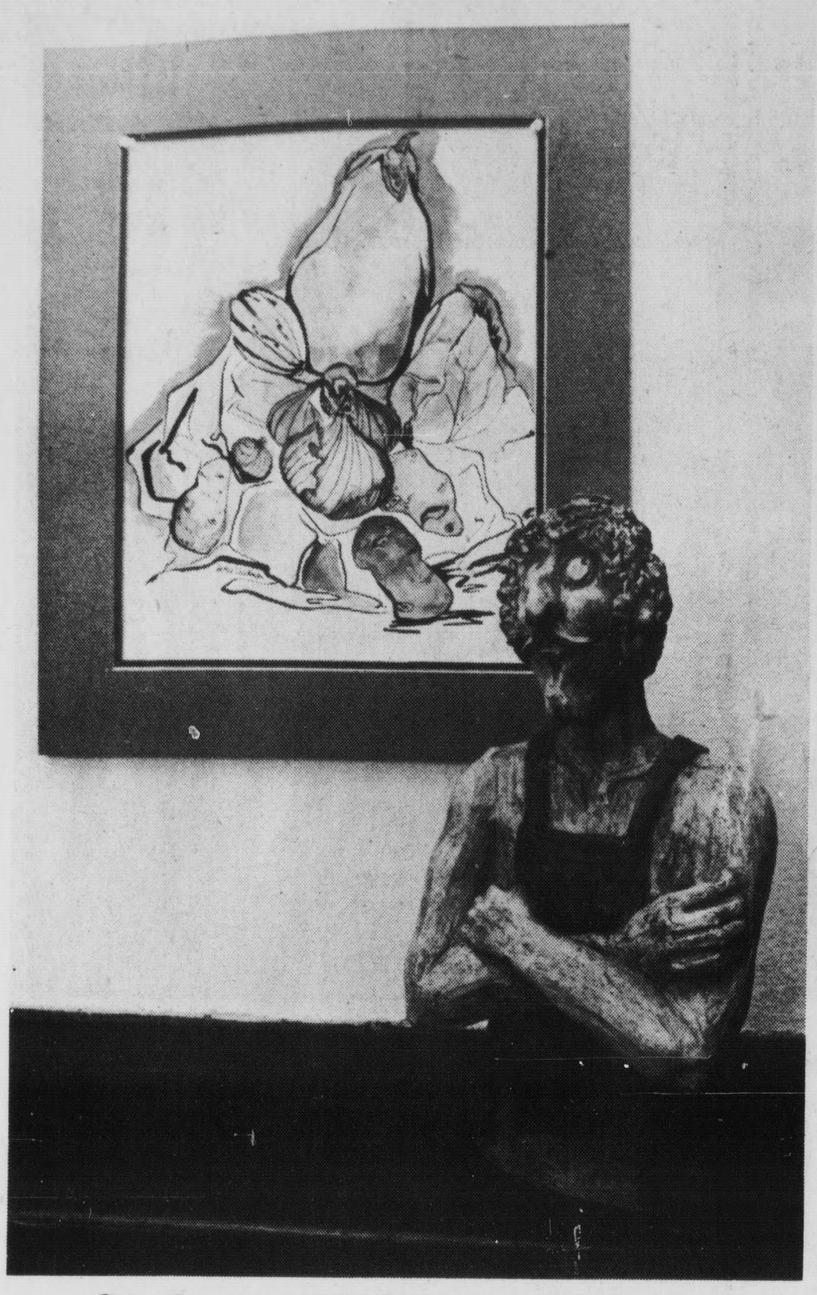
JUDY DHANT

"I'll be more interested in what they can DO than in a long list of previous experience." Judy herself made her dancing debut in the Diablo Light Opera Company's production of "The King and I" at fourteen years of age.

Also to her credit are dancing performances in the Contra Costa Musical Theater productions of "Annie Get Your Gun," "Cabaret," "Damn Yankees," and "Guys and Dolls," as well as drama education at the University of California at Irvine.

"I was most relaxed in the auditions for DLOC's production of 'Kismet,'" she laughs, "because I knew I had an edge." She shakes her long, dark hair, the heritage of her Japanese background.

"I hope that the play will be a fun experience for the dance troupe," she declares. "I'm no authoritarian, after all. A five-foot person can't afford that."



Student achievement recognized

Two $100 art scholarships were awarded last night to Doris Volkman of Livermore High School, and Terri Carlson of Granada High School by the Livermore Art Association. Doris demonstrated her artistic ability with a pen-and-ink drawing and a watercolor (shown above). Terri earned the honor with entries in watercolor and sculpture (above). Del Valle High student Carl Eachus received $35. Candidates were judged on the basis of imagination, artistic ability, and plans for continuing their art education. Runners-up in the competition were Roxane Reidell and Josh Latkin of Granada High, and Mark Gruill of Livermore High. All entrants were given student membership in the LAA. Their work is displayed at the LAA Gallery at Livermore's Carnegie Building. Browsers are welcome Thursday - Sunday, 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Tryouts for those who did not participate in last year's production of "Fiddler on the Roof" are set for a later date. Tuesday and Thursday evening rehearsals begin in July.

SETTING THE SCENE

Bill Hayden

There are a couple of fine books out now — at least one in paper back — about theatrical and film people any historian or just plain film nut should cotton to immediately.

I thoroughly enjoyed KATE a fairly definitive study of the fabulous Katherine Hepburn. I say fairly because there always lurks in the back of this aging mind the sneaking doubt that the whole truth and nothing but isn't always what we're getting.

On the other hand, I often wonder just how much our penchant for delving into the private passions and public posings of this world's famous and infamous should be indulged. There are some who feel those in the public eye have no right to privacy. Others claim personal privacy is an inherent right regardless of status or stature. Whatever your viewpoint, I feel you would enjoy reading KATE.

There is not much new offered in the way of general information but the Hepburn personality has always been a challenge and she has very definately not gone out of her way to make things easy for friend or foe.

By nature, the theatric animal is a self-centered ego-maniac who has little or no time for anyone or anything except themselves. Ninety percent of that bag is just an excuse for bad manners and a childish disregard for the feelings of others. Hepburn has her share of that. In the name of great talent she's always been allowed to get by with gaucheries that would have immediately osteracized the average guy from his fellow man.

It has always amazed me that polite, reasonable people will allow a stronger personality to walk all over them and then make apologies or, at least, justifications for the action. This is really raillery against a fact of life, however, because being a reasonable and polite fellow, myself, I'd let Katherine Hepburn walk all over me for the privilege of sharing with her a creative theatrical or movie moment. It is especially interesting for someone who has follwed her films over the years to get a bit of insight into the behind the scenes action that brought all of this about.

Time changes almost everything — even negative viewpoints. For example, almost everyone agrees "BRINGING UP BABY" is the classic comedy film of the thirties after "NOTHING SACRED" and the Irene Dunne-Cary Grant epics. The truth of the matter is something entirely different. Reviews of the time indicated it was not very highly thought of and there was no mad rush to the box offices to see it. It was probably ahead of its time because it is true there are comic subtleties that could stand with the best movie writings of this decade. This, however, might not be saying too much. Most of us like to believe the creative lines grow sharper as we go on in time. I suppose the truth lies with the individual. Katherine Hepburn in "BRINGING UP BABY" gave us a lively comic performance after winning an Academy Award for the serious role of a young and aspiring actress in "MORNING GLORY". Her talent, from "BILL OF DIVORCEMENT" in the thirties through "LOVE AMONG THE RUINS" with Olivier in the Seventies, has shown an amazing development and maturing and range. KATE explains how it all happened and you should find it great reading.

The other book I enjoyed was ALL MY YESTERDAYS the autobiography of Edward G. Robinson. It is more than just th trite immigrant boy to great American success story. Emmanuel Goldenberg from Bucharest, Romania became Edward G. Robinson actor and noted art collector of Beverly Hills, California. He was apparently a man of enormous drive; a man of tremendous pride with an almost tireless urge to not only better himself but provide a better life for those he loved or cared about.

Robinson was certainly no saint yet he had many of the qualities that make one; compassion, perseverance and an almost stoic immunity to pain inflicted upon him by others.

One of his most endearing qualities (endearing qualities in a man who could play Little Caesar?) was his personal acceptance of blame on all the occasions when things went wrong in his life. It is too long and involved to describe here, but if you really would like to know some truths about theatre and the movies; or even some verities about life, you will find ALL MY YESTERDAYS rewarding.

by Bernice Bede Osol

For Thursday, June 12, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're a mite temperamental early in the day. Toward evening you revert to your old, easy-going self.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Have someone double-check important work you handle today. They could spot a mistake easier than you could.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're likely to spend too much for something you want today. You're too impatient to wait till the price is right.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you've had a disagreement recently with a family member, a small token gift from you would work wonders for healing wounds.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your initial approach to a problem today will be wrong. Look at it from the opposite angle to find the solution.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be bashful about returning something if you can get the same item on better terms elsewhere.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be tenacious in pursuing a goal you feared was not attainable. If you re-examine your progress, you'll find your chances are better than you thought.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Guard your moves closely in any competitive situation. Time's on your side if you don't tip your hand prematurely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Step back a little to get a clearer perspective on how to avoid problems in a sensitive undertaking in which you're involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Hear out the other person's terms if you're making an agreement today. His offer may be better than you would have dared to make.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You need a sounding board to bounce your ideas off today. Tell them to one you respect and whose advice you'll listen to.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) As the day wears on, you become more pragmatic and productive. Leave your most-challenging tasks for the afternoon.

Your Birthday

June 12, 1975

An important project that you started once, but abandoned, will be taken up again this year. You'll know how to get the reward you're entitled to this time.

Opening lead — Q ♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South is looking at eight sure tricks and needs a spade trick to get to nine. The queen of hearts lead doesn't improve his prospects. If hearts break 5-3 the opponents are likely to get three heart tricks, before South has time to set up a spade.

In any event South decides to win the first heart because the opponents might shift to diamonds. He leads a spade toward dummy. West a good player ducks and dummy's jack falls to East's king.

A second heart comes back. It is allowed to hold and a third heart knocks out dummy's king.

South takes his good clubs and gets two diamond discards from West and a heart discard from East. Now he leads another spade.

West plays low again and the moment of truth has arrived. Is it a pure guess? No, it isn't. The odds are just about two to one in favor of playing the queen. The reason is that if East held ace-king he might well have played the ace, not the king. If he held king-10 he would have had to play the king.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two clubs your partner has jumped to three hearts over your opening bid. What do you do now?

Neutrons seek title with powerful lineup

The Livermore Neutrons are so solid heading into the National Youth Soccer Championships in Milwaukee this weekend that a six-year veteran and former all-star, Wayne Perry, won't be in the starting lineup.

Wayne, who started for four championship teams at Livermore High School, and played for the 1973 Nor Cal Junior All-Stars, will assume a role similar to the "sixth man" in basketball as Livermore endeavors to become the nation's top 19-year old soccer team.

"It's a pretty tough lineup," concedes Neutron coach John Young. "It's not that easy to be a starter. "But Wayne will play for us. He can play a lot of positions, so we might have him all over the place."

Perry normally is a halfback but the three starting assignments will go to Ted Wood, Mark Bryant and Dave Ahre.

Another man who normally plays the midfield, Dan Pegan, has been shifted to fullback for the two-day championships in Milwaukee.

The Neutrons are the first team from the Valley vicinity to reach the national finals in youth soccer. The other three combatants are from New York City, Dallas and St. Louis, but for that matter, they might as well hail from the other side of the world

"We don't know a thing about any of them," says Young "So we'll just have to play our own style of game."

The Neutrons haven't played since defeating Pico Rivera two weeks ago in the finals for the Western Regional championship.

Young is using that victory as a benchmark to guage Livermore's chances this weekend.

"The Pico Rivera game told us a lot," he said, "since they were the runner up team in the Nationals a year ago. By beating them we have an indication of how good the other teams are. But there will still be a lot of unknowns."

Livermore will open the tournament Saturday afternoon against an opponent to be decided Friday. First game winners play Sunday for the national title. The remaining clubs fight it out for third place.

Young established his starting lineup early in the week for the most important two days of his brief coaching career. It is basically the lineup that has carried the Neutrons to a 16-1-0 record this season.

Kevin Lennon of Granada High School will be the goal keeper, with Livermore High's Pete Howard his backup.

Lennon is in his second year with the Neutrons.

Pegan will be the central figure in Livermore's fullback corps. He is an eight-year youth soccer veteran who played on championship teams at Livermore High, and just last season, at Chabot College. Pegan played on a college all-star squad in an exhibition match with the San Jose Earthquakes this past season.

Jim Watson, 16 and one of the youngest Neutrons, is another fullback. He was named the outstanding defensive player at Granada High School .

Joe Masquelier, an under-16 Nor Cal All-Star in past seasons, and Keith Richardson, are the other fullbacks.

At halfback, Bryant is the key man for Livermore. He is playing his first season for the Neutrons. Mark helped Chabot to its state junior college championship and twice was an under-18 Nor Cal All-Star. He was given a tryout in 1973 at the U.S. Olympic Tryout Camp.

The other halfbacks, Ahre and Wood, are two of the less publicized, but more stablizing forces on the team. Both have played four years with the Neutrons.

The forward line will be headed by Dan Payne, twice an all-league selection in high school. Dan was the only high school player in the college all-star exhibition with the Earthquakes. Dan has been a Nor Cal All-Star three times, and a U.S. National All-Star once.

He will be joined by dangerous Mike Ramil, a four-time all-league choice in high school at Granada. Mike was an under-16 Nor Cal All-Star.

Chabot College sophomore Dave Anderson is also on the front line. He has been one of Livermore's leading scorers and has the most goals of any Neutron in the contests leading up the National Championships.

The remaining players are forwards Ken Henry and Manzar Iqbal, halfback Sandy Young and fullback Jeff Stephens.

Dedy Cooper wins State hurdle heat
Ells star was named area's top prep

Cooper and Costello are top area preps

OAKLAND - Unflappable Dedy Cooper of Harry Ells High School in Richmond was honored as the Bay Area's prep athlete of the year last night by the East Bay Prep Writers' Association and the sponsoring Flecto Co. of Oakland.

The presentation was made at a banquet at Goodman's Hall in Jack London Square.

Cooper, a three-sport senior superstar, closed out his high school career with three first place finishes and a second last weekend at the California Interscholastic Federation Track Championships in San Diego.

The top female athlete award went to Pleasant Hill High's Kathy Costello, who won two events at the State Track Championships in Balboa Stadium.

Del Valle football and basketball player Mitch Pleis was named sportsman of the year, and Skyline football coach Tony Fardella, coach of the year.

Among the nominees for the sportsman award was Amador Valley three-sport athlete Andy Finn. Andy played tennis and basketball for the Dons, and competed in track. He undertook the final two despite a serious knee injury.

Cooper's selection came after a year of superlative 120 high hurdle races. The string of successes crested Friday in qualifying at San Diego, when Dedy ran a 13.2, equalling the national high school record.

In the Saturday finals he won the 330 low hurdles, and anchored Ells to relay victories at 440 yards and one mile.

He lost to longtime rival Robert Gaines, however, in the highs.

"I've got to much drive — what's one race?" Cooper asked, when questioned for his feelins after the narrow loss to Gaines. "You can't be a winner every time you race When I get to college, I'll probably loseevery other time."

Dedy's extraordinary performance lifted Ells' to the state championship, a goal most people felt pivoted on his chance in the high hurdles.

"Everybody was asking me what happened in the higis," Cooper said. "But I told them not toworry. When we got to the relay, we had it right here." Cooper pointed to his upturned hand as he spoke. "You know what that is?" he asked "That's the palm of your hand."

Costello of Pleasant Hill was a cinch for her award after winning the mile and 880 at the State Clampionships In doing so, she set national prep records in both events, 4:53.5 and2:09.2. She has run a 4:51.1 mile, but that was in a dual meet, and thus not eligible for an American record.

Pleis, the Sportsman winner, was a right handed quarterback for Del Valle forced to pass with his left hand because of a damaged elbow

Post-season surgery revealed 12 floating bone chips in the injured joint. Pleis returned in the middle of basketball season and led the Foothill Athletic League in scoring.

Fardella coached Skyline High to the Oakland Athletic League football crown, and into the top spot for much of the year in the East Bay Prep Poll.

Rudy powers Blair win

Blair Food fire power proved too much for Amfac in Livermore Slow Pitch softball Tuesday, and resulted in an 11-8 victory.

The Blairs hit five home runs, and managed to survive a four-run Amfac uprising in the last of the seventh inning highlighted by Rudy Olivio's three-run homer.

Mike Orr started the Blair offensive with a solo shot in the third inning. Homers by Herb Tootle and Jim Devany helped the winners to six runs in the fourth inning. Mike Sorini and MIke Fitzmorely crashed back-to-back homers leading off the fifth inning, the spark for a four-run rally.

Amfac scored three unearned runs in the second and fourth innings, the produced another score in the fifth on singles by Dave Paulus, Don Rock and Ernest Sherman.

Al Lindbag singled home a run in the seventh inning to preceed Olivio's three-run rocket. Larry Bronson followed Olivio with a single, but winning pitcher Orr set down the final two batters in the game.

Associated Professions stymied the Godfathers, 11-3, behind the 10-hit pitching of Bob Souza. He gave up single runs in three innings.

Bill Beyers' home run and a Terry Doe double sparked A.P. to six runs in the second inning. Beyers, John Riley and Brian Johnson all had three hits for the winners.

Nazarene Church closed out the evening with a 17-8 drubbing of Livermore Dublin Disposal.

The winners rapped out 19 base hits, including four by Chuck Boswell, and three each by Neal Lann and Vern Blakesley. Lann belted a two-run home run in the second inning. That keyed a seven-run rally, and broke a 3-3 tie. Boswell and Lann each had four RBI's.

Automatic arm hurls kids back to basics

A change in priorities to fundamentals, participation and enthusiasm has led to the introduction of several rule changes in the Pleasanton American Little League Single A division, made up of the youngest players; eight year olds.

The biggest shift has been the use of a pitching machine instead of a live hurler.

Although some medical studies have shown that pitching is bad for younger kids' arms, the PALL made the change when it discovered a lack of fundamental skills in its older players.

"We found that many of the 11- and 12- year olds couldn't field," said league president Dick Bota. "Their coaches in the lower divisions had spent so much time teaching the pitchers, they had little time left over for fundamentals."

He added, "A lot of the kids would wait for walks and the fielders would be less involved with the game."

Another result of extra-careful pitch selection was the production of underagressive hitters with an exaggerated fear of striking out.

Pitching machines should clear away much of this problem as no walks are possible. A bad offering by the machine, which spits the ball out from between two spinning wheels, is ruled "no pitch". Called strikes, though, are part of the game.

The premiere of the machine, delayed from last season due to a loss of power at the Hopyard Road fields, did not meet with rave reviews, but, says Bota, the mechanical flinger earned more approval as the season moved on.

"For the first few games, we had a parent rebellion," he said, "but after awhile the same people were saying they were glad we stuck to our guns."

One of the factors in favor the machine's acceptance was the speeding up of the contests. In a league with a two and-a-half hour time limit, Single A games have run as short as 1:10 this season with all the delays coincidental to wild, young pitchers eliminated.

Although, the machine can also be used for fielding practice by adjusting the trajectory of its release, players hit only against a live pitcher in practice and coaches are encouraged to work with pitchers during the second half of the season; thus preparing them for the later levels of play.

The machine is operated by a third umpire who holds the ball up as a signal to the batter, before sending the pitch to the plate.Ten players are in thefield on defense, two of whomfield the pitcher's spot. One person is stationed on each side so that injuries from running into the machine are kept to a minimum.

The machine was chosen over another method of eliminating the pitcher—teeball—, because, according to Bota, "we were getting fielding but not hitting.

"Kids were looking around at the defense, then doing this —" he said, giving a demonstration of a not-so-unsophisticated third grader trying to hit 'em where they ain't by adjusting his stance.

The league is also trying to eliminate the anguish over not playing by having all players on the roster (up to 13) in the batting order.

Another rule change, designed to keep teams from suffering attacks of terminal discouragment, is a limit of 10 on the number of batters a team may send to the plate in a given inning.

Stealing is also banned.

"At this age, the kids don't have very good arms and stealing just turns the game into a comedy of errors," said Bota.

Triple bogey plagues Graham

PEBBLE BEACH — Dick Graham of Diablo Country Club struck disaster on the second hole of famed Spyglass Hill Golf Course yesterday and that kept him from making a run at the leaders in the opening day of the Northern California Golf Association Senior Championships.

Graham fired a 10-over par 82 at Spyglass, five strokes off the pace set by George Frazer and Mat Palacio of Marin County. Both had five-over 77's.

Graham would be a definite challenger had it not been for a triple bogey seven at the par-four second hole yesterday. Graham birdied the first and third holes, and only his collapse on the 350-yard second hole marred the round. He had nines of 41-41, with just those two early birdies.

In the second handicap flight, Las Positas Men's Club golfers Harry Fuller and Carl Luth checked in with net rounds of 85 and 86.

Fuller, a 13-handicapper from Pleasanton shot a gross score of 98. Luth of Redwood City, also a 13-handicapper, fired a 99.

First round leader in their "Spyglass Hill" flight is Millard McCormick of Oak Ridge Country Club. He posted a round of 89-16-73.

WBA still waiting outside NBA's door

Apparently the Western Basketball Association wields about as little influence with the NBA as it did with local fans last winter.

Th teetering Northern California minor league was shoved right out of the picture by NBA owners last week during their Board of Governors meeting at San Francisco's St. Francis Hotel.

While the big bosses of basketball were aquainting themselves with rookie commissioner Lawrence O'Brien and handing down judgements on the usual backlog of player rights disputes, the WBA was ignored.

It had sought a fleeting moment on the Board's agenda to broach a plan for acceptance as a minor league to the major clubs.

Under the proposal, the Tri-Valley Warriors of Pleasanton would become a farm outlet for the World Champion Golden State Warriors.

What the WBA wants is the 13th and 14th men from NBA rosters, or in other words, the final two castoffs from big league teams. It also seeks financial aid from the NBA. The WBA floundered gravely on the border of bankruptcy last season.

The concept has had lip service approval from some sources in the major league, but it didn't even get on the floor at the St. Francis, according to WBA president George Putnam.

"They talked about a lot more serious matters at that meeting than the WBA," Putnam said. "We got tabled until a later meeting.

"There's a lot going on in the NBA right now," Putnam pointed out needlessly. "To put it in modern day jargon, there are a lot of heavy happenings. So we have to wait until the next meeting. They've got one coming up, but I don't know when."

The five franchise owners in the Western League will convene Tuesday night in Oakland, Putnam said, to map out the future. Putnam vowed the WBA would function in 1976, despite the fact attendance last year dwindled to scant handfuls by season's end.

Though hopes for minor league status haven't been dashed yet, they are not strong. Golden State general manager Dick Vertleib said flatly last week that NBA owners would refuse to spend money on minor league."

Putnam, however, says the time is ripe for farm outlets. He had a note of caution though. "If it doesn't happen this year, it won't happen at all."

Vintage Hills teacher cited as 'outstanding'

"I was completely surprised," said Edythe Dellis, second grade teacher at Vintage Hills School in Pleasanton, when asked if she had any indication she was to be the recipient of the "Honorary Membership" to the school's P.T.A. "I came to the meeting with the thought it was one of the other teachers; in fact, I was so positive it was another teacher, that is why I attended the meeting to be present when she received it."

The Vintage Hills P.T.A. honored Edythe Dellis for her outstanding services to the school and her devotion and love for children.

"Mrs. Dellis has the ability of being able to reach out and bring out the best in the shy retiring child as well as the confident one," stated a parent. "She has an uncanny way of singling out a child to instill confidence without appearing to do so."

"If I had it all to do over again," said Edythe, "there isn't any other career I would choose. As a matter of fact," she continued, "my husband tells me I would probably teach even if I wasn't paid for it because I enjoy it so much. The role of the teacher has changed," Edythe stated. "Children today expect to be entertained; the teacher practically has to be an actress or actor to keep the children interested in their work."

Edythe is a teacher who strongly believes in teaching the fundamentals to children. She feels some of the schools have grown away from the fundamentals, but basically it all depends upon the teacher. Some teachers seem to be much looser with the students and believe more in letting them have their "freedom" of expression.

Many of Mrs. Dellis' students return to visit with her. Some still live here in Pleasanton and are teachers themselves.

Edythe's grandfather was also a teacher and taught in Oklahoma in 1875. She has a few of his books he used while teaching "They are very interesting and sentimental pieces to me," said Edythe.

Edythe attended Arkansas State College, taught four years in her native Arkansas, and graduated from California State College, Hayward. She came to California in 1951.

The dedicated school teacher is the mother of two daughters, Jacqualine and Lisa and has three grandchildren, David, Michael and Kristina.

She is a member of the Asbury Methodist Church in Livermore, a member of Delta Kappa Gamma and is an associate member of the Patte-Kake Chapter of the Children's Home Society in Patterson, Calif.

Her hobbies are bridge, travel, and reading.

Navy fireman

Navy Machinist's Mate Fireman Recruit Keith R. Goppert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Goppert of 7603 Amarillo Road in Dublin, has been awarded a Letter of Appreciation while serving aboard the destroyer escort USS Cook, homeported in San Diego.

He was commended for his contribution to the efficiency and operational readiness of the vessel's propulsion system. Goppert and his shipmates received an engineering excellence award during a recent inspection of the power plant and its components.

College isn't the only place to continue your education.

You may not join the Army to get a college education, but it may end up that way.

Last year alone, 90,000 young men and women earned college credits while serving in the Army. And the Army paid up to 75% of the tuition.

And now, through the Army's newest educational program, Project Ahead, you can enlist in the Army and start college at the same time.

For more information, see your local Army Representative. You'll find the address in the Yellow Pages under "Recruiting." Or call 800-523-5000 toll free. In Pa., call 800-362-5696.
